Miss Ida M. Tarbell,
#17 Rue Malebranche,
Paris, France.

Dear Madam,-

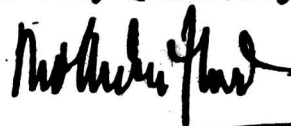

We are in receipt of your two articles on "The Salons of France." Father has read them and will be pleased to include them in the contents of forthcoming numbers of the magazine. Enclosed you will find a draft on Paris Bankers for One Hundred Dollars ($100.00), the amount which you advised would be satisfactory for these two articles.

The article which you sent several weeks ago came to hand but we are so crowded with manuscripts that father has decided to send this article to your brother in Titusville agreeable to your request under the circumstances.

Your articles on "The Salons of France" will appear in the late spring or early summer numbers of the magazine. Our plan is to publish them alternately with some articles in hand which treat of "The Salons of London."

I write this letter at father's directions, owing to the fact that he has been kept away from his desk by an illness of several weeks, but I trust the necessary points have been covered.

Yours very sincerely,

(Dictated by N. A. F.)
