Dear Miss Tarbell,

I suppose that it will be impossible to arrange to publish your "New Industrial Ideas" book until next year if, as you now estimate, it will not be possible to begin serial publication of the material until next fall.

The spring months, however, would be quite right as the time of publication for such a volume as this, and if you should be able to arrange for the book's appearance by March or April of 1915 it would be a good thing to do so.

I hope that you will get at the little Lincoln story of which you speak. It will, I presume, make a combination volume to your already well-known "He Knew Lincoln". Possibly this might be published this year, might it not?

Yours very truly,

George P. Brett

Miss Ida M. Tarbell.
