

May 30, 1935

Dear Mr. Alloway:

I fear you think I am very negligent of your courtesies. Believe me I appreciated your kind reference to my little article in the Pictorial Review - felt much "set up" that it should have found recognition in "By the Bye in Wall Street."

I am sending a copy to my editor to help keep him in his place!

I must tell you that yesterday I received the very kind note which Mrs. Prescott sent to you inviting me to come to tea someday at "Hickory Hall". Of course I am delighted to go, but regret that I must put it off for a fortnight as my work is taking me up State for a number of days. This I am writing to Mrs. Prescott together with my thanks for her charming essay "Stray Thoughts of a Book Collector."

And for your kindness in arranging all this, please believe, dear Mr. Alloway, I am most grateful.

You Goshen country must be very lovely these days. Ours in Connecticut is a great joy.

Cordially yours

Mr. Henry Alloway
Wall Street Journal
New York City