My dear Mrs. Ehrmann:

I sent you yesterday, under separate covers, two of the long photographs. The publisher of the little article I have written could not use them, but took the others, so I thought it best to send these back to you.

The Magazine Section of the Herald-Tribune has accepted the article. There are only about 2000 words, and it's as popular as I could make it, the ket on which I hung it being the pageant. I was able to make mention of the Lincoln Inquiry, and I really feel now as if I would like to go on and make a serious magazine article which I might call "The Lincoln Inquiry," but that will have to be for the future. This article will be syndicated by the Herald-Tribune so that it ought to get a pretty wide distribution.

Sincerely yours
